Westmount's director general cited for integrity and respect Bruce St. Louis to retire

BY LAUREEN SWEENEY

After 15 years at the helm of Westmount, Bruce St. Louis planned to inform members of city council on Monday that he intends to wind down his 33-year career in the coming months.

He plans to stay on as director general until a new candidate can be found and brought "fully up to speed."

St. Louis, 54, has managed the city through some of its most tumultuous times, always buoyed by the next challenge regardless of its magnitude.

"It was never a job," he said. "It was an adventure."

Bruce St. Louis

zens and staff will leave us with a huge hole that will take a while to fill," said Mayor Karin Marks.

'Incredibly loyal'

"We have in Bruce someone who is incredibly loyal, has loved the city as much or more than some residents, and knows every department inside out. In typical Bruce fashion, he has given us plenty of notice to ensure the transition is completely manageable. It's in keeping with his integrity and devotion."

St. Louis said he would stay on for "as long as it takes" to share his knowledge with a successor. "I will not leave until everyone is comfortable." He has a target date of September.

His perpetual optimism and positive attitude has been his hallmark, Marks said. "I call him the 'can-do re-actor' because he always

Stayed on for transition

Eligible to retire in 2004, St. Louis often said he would stay to steer the city through its demerger process from Montreal. "We now have a strong management team in place, and this is the right time," he told the Westmount Independent.

His pending retirement, however, will certainly be a bittersweet departure.

"The respect he has from council, citi-

St. Louis' whole career with city

says, 'I'm sure we can figure out a way to do that.'"

St. Louis bore the brunt of managing Westmount during the merger years with Montreal, often finding himself pitted between conflicting directives from his two masters, the borough and the mega-city.

But early on, he learned the dynamics of municipal politics, recognizing and respecting the role of the council as policy makers. In turn, successive councils appreciated his candor and opinion, which he was rarely shy in expressing.

The projects in which he takes the greatest pride were the completion of the refurbishment of Westmount Public Library and, organizationally, the creation of the Protective Services department that combined the Westmount Fire Brigade and the Public Security Unit.

Other milestones in his mandate included the renovation of the Protective Services building, the restoration of the lawn bowling clubhouse and the underground electrical substation, management of the Ice Storm emergency and the extensive Y2K preparations - "so much work, so little outcome," he recalled.

St. Louis served his entire career with the city, beginning September 1975 as a civil engineer in Public Works straight out of McGill.

As such, he never lost the desire to be hands-on. As director general, he thrived on appearing at a fire scene in the middle of the night in his fire gear, never deterred by the drive in from his home in Beaconsfield.

He made a point of helping at Family Day with the children's races and carnival booths. He also cooked hamburgers at the Canada Day celebrations and the staff barbecue. He chose to personally proof read reports to the public and to prepare important project reports requested by the council.

His experience in both the operations and services branches of the city, along with his work with successive councillors, served him well.

But it was his appointment as director of Westmount Light & Power in 1986 that allowed him to shine. "It changed my career," he said. The position, which some emerging city managers might take as meaning exclusion from the action at city hall, instead helped bring out his skills and resourcefulness.

He impressed the council of the day by his business plan to update and expand the city's utility to meet rapidly increasing demands for electricity while turning a generous profit. And his loyalty to the utility has continued.

It is with "the guys" that he has always chosen to sit during the city's annual Quarter Century Club banquet for long service retirees and active workers. And during Ice Storm '98, he was insistent they be particularly well fed and treated.

Known for an unwavering loyalty to his team, staff and those he believes in, St. Louis has maintained an open-door policy and an enthusiasm that was infectious.

In July 1990, when the city council named him as the "heir apparent" to be groomed for the top position in three or four years, he said: "I just hope I can keep their confidence and be responsive to the community, council and the press."

Bruce St. Louis marked 30 years of service at the city's Quarter Century Club banquet in October 2005 along with his wife, Eileen, and son, Kyle.

Almost everyone calls him Bruce. And because he spent his career with the city, it has been closely entwined with his personal life. Colleagues came to know his wife, Eileen, and remember the birth and first steps of their now university-aged son, Kyle.

He was even described during one of his council appointments as "the fearless leader of a city softball team, which has a perfect record."

Looking ahead, St. Louis said he intends to remain "very active" in the future. In that respect, he added: "Westmount is an amazing organization. I can't be more grateful to the city for my professional career. And it's thanks to the city that I can now look forward to pursuing other interests and spending more time with my family."

Library bag to be launched at book sale/storytelling event

A newer, smaller, brighter – and less expensive – book bag is being offered by Westmount Public Library just in time for a mini-book sale of love stories and Valentine storytelling on February 13.

Made of a durable pop packaging material being used by many libraries, the bag will sell at $3 or two for $5.

"It's a departure from the canvas bag and folds nicely into a small square when not being used," said library director Ann Moffat.

The design by Naira Santana depicts an owl, the library's mascot, with a quizzical look of the face.

The bag will be launched at the special book sale at 7 pm being held by the Friends of the Library so buyers can use it to carry their purchases. The storytelling by Stéphanie Bénéteau and Selwyn House teacher Roman Pylat follows at 7:30.

Chinese students visit Westmount High

Westmount High principal Michael Cristofaro with Shan Hua, principal of the visiting school.

45 students from the Second Middle School attached to Liaoning Province's Normal University visited Westmount High on January 23. The school is located in Dalian, a coastal city in northern China close to North Korea. The visitors treated their hosts to traditional and Western-style dances and instruments, as well as singing and skits in both English and Chinese. Calligraphy demonstrations were on the agenda for later in the day.

A choreographed dance.

Thank you, Sandy

The Westmount Independent is bidding farewell to a valued member of its team, advertising salesperson Sandy Cobrin. This is Sandy’s last issue.

Sandy came on board “before the beginning” and has been an invaluable resource from Day One. As an established sales rep (she had already worked for two other Westmount newspapers), she gave the Independent instant credibility with the advertising public.

Newspaper readers may be unaware of the frenzied back-and-forth that goes into getting a newspaper ready for press – and soliciting and proofing ads is one of the busiest areas of any media operation. Sandy handled it all with grace, cheerfulness and aplomb. We will have to work hard to follow in her footsteps.

Sandy has been a consummate professional. She could do what she said she could do and she did what she said what she was going to do. In a world full of people who can’t, or don’t, do what they say they will, I cannot think of higher praise.

Best wishes for the future, Sandy.

Roslyn School observed Family Literacy Day on January 25 as part of the EMSB Library Week. The Born to Read Initiative presented a gift of books for their newborns to Roslyn families with new babies.

The initiative is being supported by the Quebec Home and School Federation and the Roslyn Home and School Association. There were several readings from students and staff of excerpts from their favourite children’s books, highlighting the joy and importance of reading.

The Contrarian: Kudos to Westmount

After

Everyone has a suggestion about city services. In this space, I’ve written about recycling in the wind. (Why not issue a piece of firewood to residents to weigh down that paper? Cheap and effective.) I’ve also written about the joy that the recycling contractors take in chucking the empty bins into driveways.

But as we point out how things can be improved, we often miss how the City of Westmount so often gets its right. The sound barrier at the end of Abbott Ave. was recently a target for vandals (left), but Westmount managed to get it quickly cleaned up (right) – despite the difficulty in securing safe, approved access to CP’s tracks.

Peter Patenaude (’41-’08)

Peter Patenaude, who worked for Westmount for 25 years, latterly as the director general, will be remembered by many Westmount schoolmates and citizens.

His death on Jan. 24 at age 66 followed a second career in real estate on the West Island. A chapel service Feb. 2 follows a visitation 12 to 3 pm at Collins Clarke, 222 Highway 20, Pointe Claire. He is survived by his wife, Pierrette, sons, François and Pierre, and two grandchildren.

Patenaude grew up in Westmount and assumed the top administrative post in 1986 after the death in office of Frank Davis. He took early retirement in 1990 at age 48 following a stormy period during the council of Mayor May Cutler.

Rotary mulls ‘all access’ park at Superhospital

The Rotary Club of Westmount is considering taking a lead role in founding an “all access” park for both developmentally challenged and unchallenged kids at the future Glen Yards site of the English Superhospital, which is partially in Westmount. The concept (along with other large project possibilities) was put to the Rotary membership at their January 23 meeting and will be considered for six weeks before any further discussion.

Rotary president-elect Cynthia Campbell explained to the Westmount Independent that, “There is no park at the current Children’s Hospital [where Campbell has worked as a nurse], only a terrace. I am passionate about developmentally challenged kids. The difficulty they face is not their handicaps, but exclusion. It would be so beneficial from a developmental point-of-view for them to have access to a park.”

Campbell stressed that the proposal was preliminary for both the Rotary and the Superhospital and that the project was a long-term one, although the feedback has been positive from both groups. A neighbouring Rotary club, Vieux Montréal, has also shown an openness to getting involved.

At Second Glance: Election year 2008

BY HEATHER BLACK

For Westmounters, this may be the year for elections. Certainly a federal by-election or general election is in the offing and perhaps one for the province. And then there are the US presidential primaries. Most Canadians rate them as important – 79 percent in one CTV phone-in poll – and many are watching.

However, discussions on our common concerns – global warming and environmental agreements, Afghanistan, cross-border security and trade – are secondary to the politics of personal attack. Although Americans are increasingly concerned with health care and social security, the focus is on the candidate as symbol.

Prejudice by percentage

For Democrats, the race is between the “go-girl-go” and the “black guy.” For Republicans, Mr. “9-11” is up against the “Washington warrior,” the “Arkansas evangelist” and “Mormon Mitt”. But what about new ideas and past accomplishments? Does Mitt Romney’s innovative education scheme as former Massachusetts governor – free college tuition for the top 25 percent of students – or even his Olympic Salt Lake City success matter? A poll in early September reveals why Romney doesn’t have a prayer.

According to the Associated Press, 25 percent of Americans are less likely to vote for a Mormon candidate in contrast to 5 percent who are more inclined. But 16 percent are less likely, while 19 percent are more inclined to support an evangelical Christian. For women candidates, 12 percent are less likely, while 15 percent are more likely to support a woman. Only 6 percent are less likely to vote for a black candidate, while 9 percent are more inclined. And then there’s the “O factor.” According to one Gallup poll, it will influence up to 19 percent. Oprah’s Iowa rally for Barack Obama brought in 18,500 supporters.

But, as Americans are increasingly concerned about political corruption, what about character? Chicago Tribune writers David Jackson, Ray Long and Ray Gibson question Obama’s earlier decisions to accept funds from Tony Rezko, for ballot manipulation that eliminated all competition from his 1996 Illinois senate race and for possible conflict of interest regarding grants linked to campaign donations. To some, these politically expedient decisions undermine his role as campaign finance reformer as well as any comparisons to a young JFK.

The world’s a stage

In the American system, presidential advisors often influence, if not set, foreign policy. Republican candidate John McCain has the backing of former secretaries of state Henry Kissinger, George Shultz, Lawrence Eagleburger, Alexander Haig Jr., and former defense secretary James Schlesinger. Rudy Giuliani has the support of career diplomat and professor Charlie Hill.

Democrat Barack Obama has the support of former national security advisor Tony Lake and Zbigniew Brzezinski, while Hillary Clinton is advised by former UN ambassador and Dayton Accord negotiator Richard Holbrooke, and former secretary of state Madeleine Albright.

The president and advisors will set the agenda on border security, international intervention and the environment. And with Americans still rating terrorism (45 percent) and Iraq (44 percent) as “extremely important,” US foreign policy is also our concern.

Contrary to Stephen Harper’s year-end reference to the presidential primaries as a “game”, the recent murder of Benazir Bhutto reminds us both of the personal cost of standing for office and of the importance of democracy. So as we enter 2008, resolve to vote in whatever elections come your way. It’s more than interesting; it’s crucial.

Public Security hires second-in-command

BY LAUREEN SWEENEY

Retired Montreal police officer Richard Bourdon has become the new captain and second-in-command of Westmount's Public Security Unit.

Hired on a three-year contract, Bourdon, 56, will assume day-to-day operation of the force, including responsibility for the parking inspectors, parking permits office and implementation of the 2008 action plan: doing more with less and with higher visibility.

"I am looking forward to this new challenge," Bourdon said shortly after his arrival January 14.

A former station commander, the new captain will also oversee discipline, staffing, training, emergency preparedness and the grooming of a successor.

Proud of the calibre

"I am very proud to have a partner of his calibre," said Director Richard Blondin, who took over the reins of the force in June 2006 after his own retirement from the Montreal police service. "This gives our Public Security the advantage of having two former police commanders to help provide Westmount citizens with a service that meets their needs."

This is important, he said, in light of plans to study and update Public Security. As the director, Blondin will focus on strategic planning, budgeting, promotions, political liaison and citizen relations.

Bourdon's appointment fills the vacancy left in June by retiring John Everatt, who assumed the position in January last year when it was created. In earlier times, the second-in-command held a lieutenant's rank, but also was a police veteran.

Complementary team

Bourdon spent his 36-year police career with the uniformed branch, while Blondin's evolved into the investigational side. "So we complement each other and will make a good team," Blondin said.

Bourdon retired May 1 as commander of police station 48 on Notre Dame St. near the Lafontaine tunnel. He had held the position for 10 years following the implementation of community policing. The station is among seven that were closed in the recent police restructuring.

Previously, Bourdon was a shift lieutenant in Dorval and as a counsellor to the director of operations. Earlier, he was sergeant at the Lafontaine Park station. And, as a rookie some 35 years ago, he did a stint of a few weeks in Westmount.

"We both started and ended with Montreal police," Blondin said. They met in the same class of police recruits in November 1971 – the last one before the Montreal force was integrated into the MUC.

Bourdon, a resident of Repentigny, and his wife, Danielle Richer, have a grown daughter, a social worker. He holds several diplomas in management and human resources.

Dancing at Vic Hall

A large, multi-generational group of dancers turned out at Victoria Hall on January 26 for ballroom dancing. The event was organized by Ballroom DanceSport (5034 Sherbrooke St., 514.484.8346) and open to the public. On tap were both dancing for participants, and exhibitions by students and teachers. Pictured here (from left): Westmounters Barbara Anne Howard, Stanley Baker and Suzanne Kell.

Victorian vandals

The Bead Emporium's Victoria Ave. window was vandalized sometime after the evening of Saturday, January 19. Although the window was badly cracked, the double glass prevented the culprits from breaking through into the boutique.

EMILIO SANCHEZ

Born in Cuba in 1921, Traveled extensively and especially to the Caribbean. The play of light and shadow on coloured forms became a dominant feature of his works in the 60's and 70's while remaining strongly figurative. Stripped down to their essence, these structures acquire universal meaning. An artist with an independent voice and international acclaim, Sanchez has had over sixty solo exhibitions and has been included in numerous group shows in museums and galleries in the United States, Latin America and Europe.

Westmount Profile: Morris Shore

Investing in mind and body

BY LAUREEN SWEENEY

Many words have been written about Morris Shore who, at age 71, is one of few in his age category able to qualify for the Canadian Triathlon Team.

And indeed, he can speak for hours about the exciting prospect of competing in June at the 2008 World Championships in Vancouver.

"I've been doing sports all my life and I love my country," he says. "So it's an honour to be one of six on my team."

But his athletic pursuits are only one el-

Fundraiser for victims of Mt. Stephen fire

A fundraiser will be held on Wednesday, January 30 from 7 to 10 pm at Centre St. Ambroise (5080 St. Ambroise, 514.989.9995) in support of Ingrid Steimner and Gail Van der Walde, victims of the fire on Mount Stephen Ave. the night of January 2-3. The soirée will feature music by Stan Lee Durds and MacLeod 9 as well as poetry by John Fretz. Three quarters of the event's revenue will be divided between Steimner and Van der Walde.

Cookbook launch at St. Margaret's

A vernissage will take place on Thursday, February 7 from 1 to 2:30 pm at The Women's Group at St. Margaret's Day Centre for the launch of its first heritage cookbook, Lest We Forget: A Treasury of International Recipes Handed Down from Grandmothers around the World. The books will be for sale at the Day Centre for $15. The project will raise funds for audio assistance equipment. For information, contact Liz: 514.932.3630 x 3047.

Marianopolis reunion

The Marianopolis College Alumni Association hosts its annual silent auction and reunion from 6 to 9 pm on Thursday, January 31 at the CEGEP (4873 Westmount Ave., 514.931.8792 x 204, www.marianopolis.edu/groundhog). The auction will include airline tickets, a weekend in Stowe and Formula One tickets.

ement of the holistic view of life that Shore espouses as a world traveler who still works half days as a chartered accountant, investor and financial advisor.

"If you keep your mind and body in order," he says, "the rest will fall into place."

Get rid of the stress

In that respect, "I try to help older people get their affairs in order. It's important to think long term. The goal is to protect capital and make money. Get rid of the stress."

For Shore, exercise is a critical component to making the body feel good. "It's very true," he says, "use it or lose it."

He also believes in moderation. "If you carry too much weight, literally and figuratively, it's hard to walk. I run."

Excelled at high school sports

In the financial field for 50 years, Shore has been actively involved in sports since his childhood on Park Ave. where "all our fathers were merchants." Calling himself "a Duddy Kravitz Jew," he excelled at high school sports at the former Strathcona Academy. He began running at age 33 and biking at 45.

But it wasn't until he decided to close his office and work from home at age 58 that he took off to hike and bike through Thailand. He lived twice at an ashram in India where his daughter, Constance (known as Satara), worked for 10 years before returning to Westmount as a life skills coach.

In fact, he credits her with "teaching me how to travel." By this he means setting out with a pack on his back, staying at times with local people he might meet on the road, or at a guest house in northern Thailand for $10 a night.

"I learned a long time ago that happiness is not in needing more but wanting less," he says.

"Get rid of the car for a month. Walk. Get your affairs in order. Do good deeds." One of the mottos Shore tries to live by, he says, is the greeting on his answering machine: "If your foot slips, you can regain your balance. If your tongue slips, you cannot re-call your words."

And on the subject of cars: he doesn't own one himself but uses Commune Auto, which enables him to transport his bike to racing events.

Triathlete, Morris Shore, 71

Day starts with synagogue

Shore maintains a rigorous daily schedule. By 7:30 am, he's at synagogue, "a nice way to start the day." Back home to his apartment on Rosemount Ave., he gets on the phone to do some work. Then four days a week, he's off to the Snowdon YMHA to train for the next five hours. "I run and bike, stretch, swim and play basketball. Then I come home and sleep. I'm tired. I'm not 18 anymore. But I do a lot."

In the better weather, running outdoors is more than a physical experience. "I run alone. I see a nice tree or an interesting building. Sometimes I run through areas I knew as a child. I carry my bus pass when I run. If I go too far away, I ride home. I like to discover new things. See different people and cultures."

Shore graduated from McGill in commerce in 1957 and obtained his CA. He went into practice specializing in management accounting. He raised his two children in Chomedey before moving the family to The Boulevard in 1974. He's glad they're now adults. "It's scary bringing up kids nowadays with the cost of living and huge tax bites!"

A 'coach' for the bike

He counts on his son, Michael, to be his triathlon coach – especially for looking after his racing bike, a five-year-old model with a Marinoni frame. "I'm not a mechanic," he says. "I'm a bookkeeper. I can hardly change a flat."

He's taking him along to Poland for the March of the Living on May 1. This is an annual event in which participants walk to different Holocaust sites. Then the two are off to the Vancouver championships.

Shore's goal afterward is to continue with "the normal stuff." That means triathlons in Magog, Drummondville, Sherbrooke and Montreal. In 2007, he placed first in his age category (70-74 years) in the seven events in which he participated.

"In five of them, I was the only contestant," he says with a laugh. "So even if I was last in the entire event, I still won gold medals!"

Every step is work

"I'm not a good swimmer," he continues, "but I have a good stroke and I know how to breathe. Biking is easy because once you get momentum, the bike just goes by itself. It's the running that's hard work. Every step is work. By that time, I'm usually running on empty and counting on experience. I just have to keep my weight down."

His "real goal", however, is to do the Half Iron Man. That's a 2.4-km swim, a 90-km bike ride and a 21-km run. "If I can do that," he says, "I'll be one of very few in Canada at my age. But, I'm taking it one step at a time. I've been careful not to burn out. And I'm just lucky my knees aren't gone. When you say you can't do something, that's when you're getting old."

"I just plow on."

9 Lives: Giving Cats a Second Chance

BY LYZANNE

Stunning, isn't he? Bobby is so handsome, he's mesmerizing. Sitting in the sun, his silver-tipped white coat gleams. His huge golden eyes have such warmth, you can't help but be drawn to him immediately. This incredibly sweet and elegant Himalayan-Persian is five years old and very healthy. (He has been vaccinated and neutered.) He has come from a home where he was the only pet, so he would be happiest in another home where he is the only one. Bobby was very much cared for and bonds easily: he loves gentle children and adults.

If you would like to find out more about him and consider adopting him, please contact Gerdy at Gerdy's Rescue and Adoption on her pager at 514.203.9180 or e-mail her at info@gerdysrescue.org.

Underdog

BY FERN BRESLAW

In the children's book The Story of Ferdinand, Ferdinand is a young bull who comes from a long line of fighters and who in everyone's mind will end up becoming the biggest fighter of all. Ferdinand, however, is not like other bulls and really only wishes to sit around and smell flowers all day.

Teddy Bear is the pit bull equivalent of Ferdinand. He is a sweet four-year-old with plenty of spunk and a really optimistic outlook on life.

Everyone says he's a big softy, but unfortunately Teddy Bear is making it into this week's Underdog column after a very long wait.

Despite being a wonderful young man, he still looks very much like a pit bull.

Find out more about adopting Teddy Bear by contacting the SPCA (5215 Jean Talon West 514.735.2711).

School Board News and Views

2008 starts with a bang

BY GINETTE SAUVÉ-FRANKEL,
EMSB COMMISSIONER

Returning to school in January finds parents, students, staff and commissioners thrown into a beehive of activities. From upcoming registration for the elementary levels (January 28 to February 1) to new initiatives at the school board and upcoming elections for the Quebec English School Boards Association (QESBA), here is a short update on what has happened and what is coming up.

Literacy and the love of reading

The third week in January marked both the EMSB School Library Week and Family Literacy Day. Last Friday, Roslyn held its third annual Born to Read event, which sees Roslyn families presented with a gift of books for their newborns – an initiative of the Roslyn Home & School supported by Quebec Federation of Home & Schools. I love to attend this event, and hear guests and students read excerpts from their favourite children's books. Any program that promotes the love of reading and furthers literacy has my utmost support. Literacy is the keystone of each student's success, first at school then at work and in the community.

History and culture

February is Black History Month and Westmount Park students and staff are hard at work preparing for a month of activities. Westmount Park students will entertain Lester B. Pearson School Board students with steel pan, stepping and singing performances. Grade 5 and 6 students will take part in a McGill workshop sponsored by the Black Theatre Workshop. A showcase for parents and an art display are also in the works.

Calling all artists

Most of our schools have professional music teachers, but we cannot say the same for the teaching of visual arts and theatre. I am working on the development of art partnerships involving local artists with Roslyn or Westmount Park students and teachers to enrich and deepen the students' art education. If you are an artist and are interested in hearing more about this, please call me or send me an email.

School board governance

Return to the board took place on January 9 as a special workshop was convened to talk about school boards' role, governance and financing. A brief was prepared by the EMSB and will be presented to the minister at the beginning of February.

Three new initiatives from the council are moving forward. An elections committee will look at the problems encountered during the last elections and recommendations will be sent both to the DGEQ (Directeur Général des Élections du Québec) and the Quebec English School Boards Association. I will be chairing this committee. In addition, two other bodies will be convened: a commission to consult parents in all three regions of our board on specific local education needs or projects, and a committee to develop a mandate for an HR standing committee.

Quebec English School Boards Association

As a member of the board of directors

How to get on the EMSB electors' list

If you are a parent with a child in an EMSB school and your name was not on the list, make sure your name (and your address) is on your child's registration documents.

If you are an elector with no children in any public school, please download the registration form from westmountindependent.com, complete it and return it to: Ginette Sauvé-Frankel, English Montreal School Board, 6000 Fielding Ave., Montreal, QC H3X 1T4.

of the Quebec English School Boards Association, by press time I will have attended – with commissioners from all nine English member boards – the professional development workshops taking place January 26-7, as well as the board of directors meetings and the annual general meeting to elect the new president and VP. School board reform will be the topic of the day in preparation for the minister's forum.

Please don't hesitate to e-mail me on any topics for which you would like more information: 514.481.0387 gsauve-frankel@emsb.qc.ca.

LAURENTIANS

At Last! A Real Quebec Winter

BY ROGER HAUGHEY

If you ignore the brief warm spell in early January, this winter has been more like those of our past; lots of snow, cold temperatures, and lots of opportunities to enjoy winter sports. There is more snow on the ground up here than in Montreal, and the beautiful winter weather adds an extra sparkle to the landscape and brightens up people's spirits as well.

For cross country skiing, the Laurentians offer more groomed terrain than any region in Canada, and feature an incredible variety of terrain for all types of skiers. There are several private centres like the Far Hills Inn in Val Morin (514.990.4409), and public areas like the P'tit Train du Nord in Piedmont (450.224.7007) and the Corridor Aérobie in Morin Heights (450.226.1220) which, for a nominal charge, offer tens of kilometers of cross country terrain. Wherever and however you like to ski, check the latest snow conditions, and then check out the excellent centres so close to home in the Laurentians.

EVENTS:

Festi-Vent, This colourful family event, held in St. Placide, is one of the largest winter kite festivals in North America. Most of the activities take place outdoors. Each year, there are more than 30,000 visitors. February 23 to 24.

Canadian Ski Marathon, Gatineau to Lachute, February 8 to 10. This annual two-day event features a double-tracked ski trail divided into 10 sections spanning 160 km and welcomes over 2,000 skiers of all skill levels for a weekend of fun and exercise. Call 819.770.6556.

Genest wins Green Party nomination

Claude Genest won the federal Green Party's nomination on January 16 at the Atwater Library, defeating freelance writer Jack Locke. Genest is a broadcaster, actor and environmental expert, who is also vice-president of the Green Party of Quebec and deputy leader of the Green Party of Canada. He has already run federally and provincially for the Green Party in various ridings. He is the son of the late actor Émile Genest, best remembered as Napoleon in La Famille Plouffe.

Genest has been the host of Travel, Travel and starred in the ABC police drama Sirens. He is the founder of the Green Mountain Permaculture Institute in northern Vermont, where he teaches and which hosts courses for University of Vermont students. His latest media production is the PBS TV show Regeneration. He lives in Mile End and Vermont.

He explained his goals to the Westmount Independent. "Previously, I was running to make a stand. This year, we are running to win. We can't get over our astounding rise in the polls. We are at 20-25% [in some polls]. If we can get [Green Party leader] Elizabeth May into the leaders' debate, that could really change people's minds."

Morin Heights Viking Loppett, Morin Heights, February 24, 450.226.1220. This year is the 36th anniversary of this ski race, widely considered to be the largest cross-country skiing event in eastern Canada. Registration cost includes skiing, waxing services, an after-race meal, and an unforgettable experience in the "Capital of Cross Country Skiing in Canada."

Hiver en Nord, Place Lagny, St. Agathe des Monts, Until March 12, 819.326.8348. Activities include skating on the lake, snow buildings, fireworks, and other family-friendly events.

Duo exhibits textiles

Barbara Wisnoski and Lily Lam will be exhibiting their respective textile art in The Gallery at Victoria Hall (4626 Sherbrooke, 514.989.5226) until February 9. A "meet the artists" night will be held on January 31 from 7 to 9 pm. The gallery's regular hours are Monday to Friday 10 am to 9 pm, and Saturday and Sunday 10 am to 5 pm.

Wisnoski's textile work is not traditional quilting, and betrays her art and design background. She recently exhibited her work in the juried exhibition "BigFibre LittleFibre" in Toronto.

Lam is a more traditional quilter whose works depict a variety of figures and themes. With work in several collections, she has also undertaken commissions such as a storyteller's cape, entitled "Cloak of Imagining," for the Westmount

Barbara Wisnoski and Lily Lam at the border between their respective exhibition areas, and in front of their respective works.

Public Library.

Lam was recently interviewed by CJNT (cable 14, Bell ExpressVu 207), for airing on January 28 (6:30 pm), January 29 (1:30 pm) and February 1 (10 am).

History quiz: When was it built?

Question from p. 12: When was the Westmount Lookout built?

Answer: 1932.

The construction of the Summit Circle Lookout, as it was originally called, on the south side of Summit Circle along the full width of Sunnyside Park was a project initiated by the City of Westmount in 1932. It provides a view of the City of Westmount and the City of Montreal. You can also see the St. Lawrence River and beyond. It was one of very few public works undertaken in the Depression years after the collapse of the financial markets in the fall of 1929. Most construction was at a standstill. Our mayor was George Hogg. As unemployment increased, a program was started in October 1931 to employ citizens who were out of work to grade Sherbrooke St. in front of Westmount Park, clean vacant lots and load snow by hand at 25 cents per hour.

Descending from the Lookout are steps leading down to a steep path through Sunnyside Park to Sunnyside Ave. If you turn around and cross Summit Circle, you will enter the 46-acre urban forest we call Summit Park. It continues to be a wildflower and bird sanctuary where dog owners can walk their dogs and people can experience the result of decades of natural processes, see trees of all ages and discover different ecosystems.

Twenty metal indicators were installed along the edge of the Lookout pointing toward distant landmarks. By leaning over and looking along these arrows on a clear day, you can see the more distant points of Heron Island, the CIBC building, Place Ville Marie, Mount St. Hilaire, Rouge Mount, the St. Hubert Airport, Montreal harbour, the Victoria bridge, Nuns' Island, St. Lambert, the Champlain bridge, the Green Mountains, the Sun Life Building, Mount Johnson, Westmount Park and Verdun.

A recent much needed restoration of the Lookout structure was undertaken by the city. Our Lookout is a very pleasing place to take out-of-town guests to see the cities unfold below. On a delightfully sunny day after our last snowstorm I witnessed many visitors enjoying the view while explaining to each other what the various buildings are.

THE WESTMOUNT TOWNSHIPPER

ArtWorks Plans to connect with English-speaking artists

By DANIELLE LaFRANCE

The art world is a finicky and difficult industry particularly without a supportive community. English-speaking artists in Quebec might feel the anxiety of producing and legitimizing their work in a French-majority market, but the Townshippers' Association has developed a plan to reach out to art professionals – ArtWorks Project.

Rachel Garber is the executive director, and emphasizes how “The Townships’ English-speaking community has more than twice the proportion of arts workers than the French-speaking majority has. But they all too often are invisible, so when opportunity comes knocking, it can’t find their doors!”

The project is in the throws of compiling lists of artists and inquiring into their wants and needs.

Making connections

“Some arts communities are already well-connected, like the one in the Sutton area, but others are not – that’s part of the challenge,” says Mark Patterson, marketing specialist.

Artist group meetings have already been facilitated as well as the development of a database, in order to disseminate information and links to arts councils, schools and funding. Applying for grants, in particular, is an often tedious and mind-boggling process.

“An interesting and useful topic would be demystifying how works are juried,” said Patterson.

To note, the project couldn’t be made possible without the support of the Townshippers’ Association and the Quebec-wide English Language Arts Network (ELAN), and the financial backing of the Development of Official-Language Communities Program of Canadian Heritage. The project is beneficial for English-speaking artists to build entrepreneurial relationships and, most importantly, expand their knowledge of how the art world works. # Green weddings

By ANNIKA MELANSON

It seems like the colour green is en vogue these days and many Westmounters have become particularly environmentally conscious. So if you’re in the midst of planning a wedding and are thinking green, read on.

The average wedding costs almost $30,000 and involves many unnecessary things that are “traditional”, such as bon-bonnières, those tacky little party favours that become dust collectors on a shelf and probably cost a lot of money. Instead, why not use the money to make a charitable donation?

Ladies, I know that the fairytale wedding involves wearing the gown of your dreams and will also cost a fortune. Why spend thousands of dollars on a dress that you will only wear for a few hours? Not to mention the fact that many wedding gowns are made in unhealthy and unsafe working conditions overseas and involve chemicals sprayed onto non-organic cotton.

To get more information, check out www.atoexpo.com or www.earthspeaks.com. Why not opt for a second-hand dress or a formal gown that can be worn again? (Personally, I selected a white lace bustier and had a long silk skirt made, which can be attached with hooks – or not. Since my wedding day, I have paired the bustier with black palazzo pants or the skirt with a different dressy top and have got good wear from my wedding dress.)

Another option is wedding dress rental. A great place for wedding dress rentals is Oui je le Voeux (6924 St. Hubert, corner of Bélanger, 514.276.2945, www.ouijelevoeux.com). The boutique has more than 500 dresses to choose from, including recycled ones that have been remodeled. The dresses have all been professionally cleaned and are ready to be worn. Dress rentals cost between $250 to $550, including all accessories. I recommend taking dress insurance, which covers minor tears at the hemline, cigarette burns and what is considered normal use.

Plus (1369 Greene Ave., 514.938.4688, www.origamiplus.com). Another good bet for purchasing invitations is at Au Papier Japonais (24 Fairmount Ave. W., 514.276.6863, www.aupapierjaponais.com). Select from an assortment of eco-friendly paper, including local stationery company St. Amand, which like Crane, uses recycled cotton from the garment industry and Japanese paper made from the branches of mulberry trees, without cutting down the tree. Or send your invitations by e-mail and avoid using paper at all.

Green flowers

A wedding without flowers is like a bride without a groom. Choose organic flowers. Sierra Eco Flowers is a company that is committed to fair trade for flower farm workers as well as maintaining healthy soils by practising environmentally responsible growing methods and waste disposal. They are available at Fleuriste Centre Ville (Central Station, 895 de la Gauchetière W.) and at Atelier de Fleurs Green Poppies (5658A Parc Ave., 514.279.1120). Another florist that stocks fair trade roses, which can be difficult to find, is Mayfair Florist (5155 Cote des Neiges, 514.738.1179).

For your centrepieces, use organic strawberries and kiwis to fill wicker baskets or go for a more modern look with a glass bowl or vase filled with lemons and limes. Take the fruit home after the reception and recycle (i.e. eat) it.

Sustainable reception venue

If you are looking for a green reception venue, the LEED-certified (Leadership in Energy and Environmental Design) sustainable building La TOHU (2345 Jarry St. East, 514.374.3522, www.tohu.ca) is available for wedding receptions. Staff will help to organize a green wedding, including catering. The TOHU is the former Cité des Arts building, where the circus school practises. As well as going eco on your Big Day, you also have the option of descending from the ceiling on a trapeze as man and wife.

Waste not, want not

Tons of food ends up in dumpsters after each wedding reception. There is no way that one needs to eat every morsel offered at weddings. Opt for food stations where guests can circulate and mingle while sampling organic hors d'oeuvres.

Happily ever after

Last but not least, the honeymoon. Check out www.greenhotels.com for a list of eco-conscious resorts that support fair trade and are conscious of recycling, saving water and energy. Another handy website for selecting an eco-wise beach honeymoon is www.blueflag.org. Beaches listed on the website are selected because of their good environmental management, water quality and safety as well as other criteria.

Wedding Announcement

Anthea Dawson and Jeremy Oldland were married at St. Matthias' Church in Westmount on October 13, followed by a reception at the St. Sulpice Hotel in Old Montreal. Anthea, executive chef at Simply Wonderful Catering, and Jeremy, general manager and co-owner of Hatley, had the time of their lives surrounded by all their family, friends and loved ones. They just returned from an incredible three week honeymoon in Thailand and Hong Kong.

What's Cooking in Westmount? Thai on Victoria Ave.

By ANTHEA DAWSON

Having just returned from a glorious three weeks in sunny Thailand, it was a very rude awakening this weekend to watch the thermometer dip below minus 18. While the beautiful days of sunsets and lazy beach walks seem to fade faster than I could say "frostbite", I trudged to work bundled up to my eyelids, feeling the tan slowly ebb from my skin.

While the balmy weather was one huge perk to my time in Thailand, it came a close second to the delicious cuisine. Fiery curries, smooth coconut soups and dirt-cheap phad thais were our sole sustenance, and I've been craving them since our return. Usually one has to take a trip down to Chinatown in order to find ingredients for authentic Thai cuisine, but I recently realized on Victoria Ave. that you don't need to go that far to find many of the basic ingredients needed to bring a little spice into your kitchen on these cold January nights.

Ingredients available locally

The basics for Thai cooking (ginger, garlic, mint, limes, and coconut milk) have been prominent features at most grocery stores like Metro and Cinq Saisons for quite some time. And now, it is even more common to find specialized goods like lemongrass, oyster sauce, bok choy, Thai chilies and coriander. The specialty Asian sections at these stores also offer good selections of rice, noodles, sauces and curry pastes. Across from Metro on Victoria at Miyamoto Japanese Food and Giftware (382 Victoria Ave., 514.481.1952), you can find fresh tofu, spring roll wrappers, fish sauce and extensive varieties of rice noodles, soy sauces and Asian cooking oils.

I was determined to recreate my favourite dish, pad thai, and I was happily surprised to find all the ingredients I needed in one shop at Metro. It is a very simple and quick recipe, and perfect for bringing a little Thai sun into your kitchen!

2 Tbsp. vegetable oil
1 Tbsp. chopped garlic
1 Tbsp. chopped shallot
50g hard tofu, cubed
50g sliced chicken or shrimp
1 egg, beaten
4 Tbsp water
3-4 Tbsp. oyster sauce
1 Tbsp. fish sauce
1 tsp. sugar
1 tsp. soy sauce
100g flat rice noodles, soaked for 10 minutes in warm water
1 cup each bean sprouts and sliced scallions (or chives)
1 Tbsp. chopped peanuts (optional)
1 Tbsp. chopped coriander (optional)
1 lime, cut into wedges

Heat oil on medium heat in a wok, add garlic, shallot and tofu and fry until golden. Add chicken or shrimp. When chicken is almost done or shrimp is pink, add beaten egg and stir in.

Add 2 Tbsp. of water, fish sauce, oyster sauce, sugar and soy sauce.

Add noodles and 2 more Tbsp. of water and cook until the noodles are tender and incorporated. Stir in bean sprouts and scallions and turn off heat.

Divide evenly amongst 2 bowls and garnish with peanuts, coriander and lime wedges. Serve and enjoy!
