

$90-million 'belt-tightening' budget

Taxes rise 2.16% on homes, parking rates, fines also up

BY LAUREEN SWEENEY

Westmount homeowners face a tax increase of 2.16 percent in 2011 under the city's $90-million budget adopted December 20. This translates into $239 more on the equivalent bill for the average single-family dwelling.

The budget's increase of 4.1 percent is driven largely by a 3.8 percent rise in the city's share of island-wide agglomeration costs.

While the city plans to hold the line on its own local spending through "belt-tightening" measures, said Councillor Tim Price, it is passing on the aggro increase to taxpayers along with certain other "uncontrollables."

These include the pension fund deficit, debt service and pay-as-you-go financing for capital works projects.

Parking rates and traffic fines are being increased to help reduce the amount of the budget increase to be borne by taxpayers, he explained. As a result, taxes overall will rise only 3 percent while the budget climbs 4.1 percent.

Total tax rates adopted per $100 of property valuation include: $1.0361 for single family dwellings and residences of five units or less; $1.1726 for larger apartment buildings; and $4.018 for non-residential properties.

For homeowners, this works out to a tax bill of $11,302 on the average single-family home assessed at $1.027 million.

Newsflash:

Martin to aggro group

Councillor Patrick Martin has been selected to represent the Association of Suburban Municipalities (ASM) as vice-chairman of the newly created contracts committee of the island-wide agglomeration. The appointment was approved December 21.

There were no new shoes for finance commissioner Tim Price because they weren't needed, he said, consistent with the spirit of the city's 2011 budget.

Westmount will phase in the 2011-2013 valuation roll over three years.

The non-residential sector will face the largest increase, 5.8 percent.

Tax bills will be sent out in late January, payable in two installments March 1 and June 1.

Budget highlights

Under the $90-million budget, $48 million (or 54 percent) goes to the aggro.

The remaining $42 million consists of $30 million for Westmount's operation of local services (such as Public Works, Public Security, the library and Sports and Recreation) and $12 million for "uncontrollable" expenses.

These include $1 million to the regional Montreal Metropolitan Commission (MMC) plus the pension deficit, debt service and financing, and pay-as-you-go.

The budget's $3.6-million increase includes $1.8 million more for the agglomeration, $1 million for the pension deficit, $5 million toward pay-as-you-go as well as debt financing.

"The main challenge for all municipalities is the increase in agglomeration costs," explained Councillor Price, the finance commissioner. "We've tried to support the mayor in his efforts to bring in restraints."

He pointed out that the city had managed to keep the cost of local services at just under this year's budget. This was achieved through "general belt-tightening" despite increasing costs in labour and other areas.

But rising aggro costs, pension deficits and infrastructure investment might require the city to take a hard look at current services to determine "what we need to do as opposed to what is nice to do."

Costs associated with sustainability have been built into departmental budgets.

Boots McLeod has been selling Christmas trees outside Les 5 Saisons on the corner of Greene and de Maisonneuve for almost 30 years. This is his last year – as it has been for several years past. "We'll see," he said.

Why the name? It was a nickname given to William Kenneth McLeod by his father, whom he describes as "a joker, a bit of a comedian from the Maritimes" and his mother, a Bostonian – and something to do with an important football game that was going on at the time of his birth.

McLeod, a South Shore resident who stays with his son in NDG when he's in town selling his trees, used to grow his own trees on a plantation but no longer. One dollar from each sale goes to support the Missing Children Fund. Publication day, December 23, is scheduled to be his last day of selling. The new residential/commercial development at the current site of 5 Saisons is expected to be underway next December.

Why is this issue so small?

This issue is so small because we decided to publish during our usual holiday in order to cover the Westmount budget, which came down on December 20. Next issue: January 11, 2011

Parking meter rates upped to $2/hr.

It will cost more to park at Westmount meters in the new year and to pay up if you exceed the time.

Meter rates will rise to a standard $2 an hour throughout the city. Current rates now range from 75 cents an hour to $1.25.

Tickets will also jump by $15 to $52 ($40 fine plus $12 administration fee). It is the first increase in about 15 years, according to city officials.

Other traffic fines are also slated to increase – all to swell city coffers by some $1.75 million under the 2011 budget adopted December 20. This infusion of added revenue will reduce the tax bill on the average single-family dwelling by $250, it was explained at the council meeting.

The new $2 meter rate compares to $3 per hour in downtown Montreal and $1.50 per hour to the west in NDG. Outremont rates are $2 per hour, "so we'll be somewhere in the middle," explained Councillor Tim Price.

Ticket amounts are also consistent with Montreal's downtown Ville Marie borough.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

CHRISTMAS TREE CELEBRATES ... CHRISTMAS

In response to the "open" letter from Madame Hortense Michaud-Lalanne concerning religious symbols at city hall: Madame Michaud-Lalanne starts off her letter requesting the removal of the offensive Hanukkah menorah rather disingenuously by stating that the Christmas tree is not a symbol of Christmas! She would like us to believe that the Hessians she refers to as bringing the tree to Quebec were pagans celebrating the winter solstice rather than Christians celebrating one of the two most important religious holidays on the Christian calendar.

Not surprisingly, she also seems to be ignorant of the fact that while it is on the Jewish calendar, Hanukkah is not a holy day (or eight days) per se. Rather, it is at its heart a celebration of religious freedom.

I suspect that Madame Michaud-Lalanne would have found Westmount much more palatable 100 years ago when not only were Hanukkah menorahs not on public display beside the city's Christmas tree, but when Jews were discouraged from living here altogether.

LILA STERMER, ROSLYN AVE.

THANK YOU, PUBLIC WORKS!

We would like to take the opportunity to formally thank Westmount Public Works, specifically Dan Amhurst, for going above and beyond and clearing a large snow bank that was preventing access to the main entrance and handicapped parking of our seniors' community centre. Without his and Westmount Public Works' quick action, we would not have the same sense of security and relief for the safety of the over 120 seniors that attended our annual Christmas dinner. From all of us at the Contactivity Centre, thank you.

A HOLIDAY WRAP-PING STORY

Last Wednesday, I decided to finally pay my dog licence fee at Westmount city hall. I was a little overdue - 14 years - and thought it would be wise to make Poopsie legal before she croaked.

So I walked down the hill. I found a copy of the Independent resting on a park bench. I usually just throw my copy in the recycling, but this time I decided to have a read. As I was reading, I climbed the stairs at city hall and without warning BONK! I was struck on the head by an immovable object.

As I struggled inside to find a place to sit down to nurse my aching noggin, I bumped into a fella who was in a royal huff.

"Did you know they're going to raise our taxes this year?" he says to me.

"I can't remember why I've come here," I submit.

"That's another of our issues," he interrupts, "Memory. We have all forgotten we need a separation of church and state, or at the very least, a separation of city hall's door and the menorah!"

"Is that what hit me?" I ask.

"No. It was bad governance. We need to challenge the status quo. That's why a group of us have started the Westmount Reform Alliance Party. Hey, we need a man to volunteer as membership chair. Are you interested?"

I ask him to tell me more. He says that the administration of Westmount is out of control. He insists that the mayor is in a deep rut.

"A Trentch?" I suggest.

"Just tell people that for $25, WRAP will reduce taxes on citizens by $50. That's a 100% return on investment."

Return on investment. That's something most Westmounters might understand. I reach into my wallet and give him $25. He gives me a book of membership forms.

Capital works budget reduced

Resources deployed to arena/pool project

BY LAUREEN SWEENEY

Westmount's capital works expenditures for 2011 and the two following years have been reduced in number and capped at some $6.5 million a year in costs to the city in order to deploy resources to the arena/pool project.

While next year's municipal and Hydro Westmount capital works budget calls for projects totalling $8.9 million, some $2.4 million in costs are slated to be recovered through government grants. The program was adopted by city council December 20.

The city has spent recent years playing catch-up with road work and other capital works projects neglected during the merger years with Montreal, explained city director general Duncan Campbell. "We won't be able to keep up the same level of activity moving forward with the arena/pool project."

While actual costs of the $37-million arena/pool project are not included under the capital works program, $7 million is anticipated to be spent on it in 2011. Out of this amount, the city will incur a net debt of $2.3 million after $4.7 million to be covered by the government grants.

The city's operating fund will pay for $3.5 million of the municipal work under the "pay-as-you-go" allocation. The remainder is to be debt-financed.

Roadwork scheduled

Roadwork slated for next year at a cost of $2.2 million includes the reconstruction of Elm (de Maisonneuve to Sherbrooke), Holton (Wood to east city limits) and Windsor.

Budget...

total budget will be covered through general property taxes. The remainder will come from fees, permits, fines and Hydro Westmount profits of close to $1 million. Another $1 million is appropriated from accumulated surplus to help reduce the tax burden.

A separate capital works budget was also adopted for 2011 at $6.5 million after expected subsidies (see story above).

Proposed water main and sewer replacement or rehabilitation is planned for Elm, Windsor, Upper Roslyn, Belfrage, Sherbrooke (Victoria to Roslyn), Prince Albert (de Maisonneuve to Sherbrooke), Belmont Crescent, Holton and de Casson. The work, budgeted at $2.9 million (gross), is expected to cost the city $543,000.

Other work listed allocates $730,000 to the restoration and repairs to municipal buildings, including Centre Greene, as well as $525,000 to the purchase of new work vehicles.

Information technology upgrades account for another $363,000 while the parks will receive $315,000 for ongoing-landscaping and purchases of furniture and playground equipment.

Miscellaneous projects totaling $350,000 include work on the city's master traffic plan, phase 2 of the restoration of the "Westmount Park" cannon, and bike rack purchases.

Hydro Westmount plans to make $1.5 million worth of upgrades in 2011.

Graffiti witnessed, arrests made

Public safety officers followed a trio of graffiti suspects around several streets December 11 until police arrived to arrest them, Public Security officials report. They were described as aged 14 or 15.

The three were spotted at work about 5:30 pm in a lane behind the armoury of the Royal Montreal Regiment on the north side of St. Catherine near Park Place by a nearby resident who called Public Security.

An officer on foot patrol in Westmount Park was alerted and noticed them exiting the lane at Melville.

Freshly painted black graffiti tags were discovered in the lane. An officer in a patrol car kept the suspects in sight as they made their way to Hillside and then headed toward the arena where they were intercepted and detained by police.

Dog walker fined $75

A Westmount resident was issued a $75 ticket December 12 when his dog was found running loose in Westmount Park around 4 pm, Public Security officials said. The dog was finally caught between the playground and the soccer field. The owner was reported to have been cautioned previously for the same offence.
