Riverview fire forces residents from homes, kills cat

By Laureen Sweeney

A small house fire in the basement of 7-9 Riverview Lane just before 11 am March 31 left residents without a home and claimed the life of a cat, according to Public Security officials.

“The cat died of smoke inhalation,” said assistant director Greg McBain.

The cause of the fire was unknown and expected to be investigated by the fire department and police arson squad, he said.

Its spread was limited to the front of the building that faces Riverview Lane, the narrow street wedged alongside the railway fence between Lewis and Abbott.

“Firefighters did a good job of containing it,” said Councillor Cynthia Lulham, who lives nearby and was on the scene. “They told me the fire appeared to have started in a wall.”

Dog taken out

It was fortunate residents were home at the time, she added, because the affected building adjoins other apartments. It appeared some residents were able to salvage a few belongings and one woman managed to save her dog.

While Public Security assisted in blocking the street and helping residents, Red Cross personnel attended the scene to provide emergency accommodation to those in need.

By late afternoon the windows were already neatly boarded up.

The fire, Lulham said, reminded her to make another request for a street sign to be mounted on the railway fence. Riverview is the only lane in Westmount that has street addresses.

While it is marked as a street on the city of Westmount’s maps, it does not appear in most others or street directories.

Water leak springs from Sunnyside

A water leak in the road at Sunnyside and Belvedere Rd. caused a stream of water to flow down the hill to The Boulevard March 24 at 4:30 am, Public Security officials said. Officers taped off the area around the source of the problem, which had caused a four-meter-long crack in the asphalt. Waterworks personnel were called, the water shut off and the fire department notified that a nearby hydrant was out of order.

Council views new Security car

By Laureen Sweeney

While not yet equipped with its rooftop emergency flashers, this new-look Public Security patrol vehicle was on display outside city hall April 2 so council members could view it before agreeing to purchase two more. Neither this one nor a companion vehicle is yet in service.

The subsequent approval of two additional Subaru Foresters will bring the total to four.

In renewing the fleet, the city is switching from the traditional yellow Public Security vehicle to white. This is a cost-cutting measure to eliminate the costs of painting and repainting the cars when they are bought and sold (see February 14, p. 15).

Councillor Gary Ikeman, Public Security commissioner, drew the meeting’s attention to the vehicle that had been “conveniently” parked outside, he said. It is one of the two new arrivals ordered on last year’s budget and has been undergoing road tests.
Spring flower show welcomes new Westmounters

Angelina and Tony Loffreda, newcomers to Westmount, learn firsthand about the role of the city's Public Security Unit from the director, Dave Sedgwick, left, during the official opening April 4 of the spring flower show. The reception, which welcomes new residents to the community and recognizes volunteers, took place at Victoria Hall. The flower show at the adjacent conservatory will remain open from 10 am to 9 pm weekdays and 10 am to 5 pm on weekends until blooms fade.

Westmount’s own potcake

I was thrilled to read George Bowser’s column on potcakes (March 27, p. 23). Meet Rupert, my “granddog” from the Turks and Caicos.

My daughter Wendy and her husband Philip Kaufman went to the Turks on their honeymoon in October 2011 and came home with this wonderful dog. He was a tiny pup then, and they had no trouble bringing him home.

As you can see, he is now a very handsome dog. He is a regular visitor to Westmount.

Making a greenway

In letters there has been ongoing demonization of cyclists while ignoring the bull in the china shop.

We should be shocked by the number of pedestrians and cyclists injured by vehicles. Between 1999 and 2008 a total of 3,771 children between the ages of 5 and 17 were struck by vehicles on the island of Montreal, about eight per week. In September 2010, a CAA Quebec study near schools found that 39.2 percent of vehicles were speeding, 15.3 percent did not follow road signs or directions from crossing guards.

We need to find ways to enhance the protection of school children from accidents with vehicles. For example, there are significant numbers who walk or cycle to St. Léon school.

One way would be to raise de Maisonneuve’s designation to that of a greenway. It is already one of the quietest streets in Westmount. Its safety could be enhanced if it were to acquire greenway status. This would mean limiting de Maisonneuve to local car traffic with a maximum speed of 15 km/h. Walking and cycling would continue along with a range of possible “green” features like enhanced vegetation, different road surfaces, rainwater collection swales, rose trellis, ornamental cedars, etc. And the districts it passes through would have a low percentage of car ownership and high population density.

It would dovetail well with Genivar working on the Active Transport and Traffic Plan. Genivar has recently been involved in major Vancouver projects and as such could not have failed to notice Vancouver’s proposed city greenway network of 14 routes approximately 140 km long.

If successful, this greenway concept could be expanded to some other suitable streets in Westmount and possibly along de Maisonneuve into NDG and Ville Marie. Westmount would be again leading the way.

Cavalry a rare sight

It’s common knowledge that Westmount Public Security is replacing its hybrid security vehicles, but were you aware that the police had already replaced most of its vehicles for the four legged type? This photo taken during the student march through Westmount on March 30. The [cavalry] was walking down Victoria after protecting Jean Charest’s house. Were they off to protect the offices of the Westmount Independent?

No sympathy for students

The students may have been relatively quiet, but on their way to Jean Charest’s house, they vandalized my friend’s brand new car.

These are the juveniles whose education I should subsidize (even more) through my taxes?

How does damaging others’ property further their cause for tuition costs? I have no sympathy for their complaints.

To the southbound driver on Melville Ave. on a recent Friday evening, who so considerately yelled at me “no parking allowed!” while I waited for him to go by before putting my son in his car seat: First, the sign you were pointing at was the three-minute maximum idling sign. Second, I was perfectly in my right to be stopped where I was as the other sign clearly indicates a 10-minute maximum parking allowed from 8:15 to 8:45 and from 5:15 to 5:45 Monday to Friday, in the drop-off zone.

Great Earth Hour event and other celestial delights, thanks to the 15 volunteers from the Royal Astronomical Society.

All this was greatly facilitated by Hydro Westmount, which doused the lights outside Victoria Hall.

Inside, we had 18 exhibits ranging from mini-market L’autre choix to the International Dark-sky Association. An excellent presentation was made by Sherbrooke CEGEP professor Johanne Roby on how excessive lighting is detrimental to health. We also heard inspirational thoughts from Peter Trent, Jacques Chagnon and Marc Garneau, while Simply Wonderful served tasty, healthy snacks at cost. Finally, musical entertainment by local talent was led by Stan Grossman.

Thanks to Earth Hour subcommittee members Eve Aspinall, Pat Dumais, Stan Grossman and Paul Marriott, along with the cooperation of Westmount events coordinator Virginia Elliott, Councillor Theodora Samiotis, Hydro Westmount and Westmount Public Security.

We thank all those who helped make this a great success, including you our citizens, and we look forward to more next year. In the meantime, don’t forget to rein in your energy needs for more than just one symbolic hour and give our planet a break!

‘Yes’ to Cars

In response to Daniel Lambert’s letter “Yay to the Traffic Questionnaire,” I say by all means let’s replace not a few, but all car lanes with bike paths. Why not have Westmount pass a law forcing everyone to ride bikes or walk to their destinations? That way Mr. Lambert can finally live in the automobile-free utopia he dreams of.

If Mr. Lambert believes his “quality of life is being eroded by the overwhelming presence of motor vehicles,” I would respectfully suggest he move to an Amish community, where he will be free to roam on his horse and buggy or ride his bicycle to his heart’s delight, free of those terrible cars interfering with his right to live.

No doubt, Mr. Lambert, if you had your way, the automobile as a method of transportation would be outlawed, and scofflaws would be harshly dealt with by Mother Justice.

Mr. Lambert believes in negative reinforcement to get people to drive less, as evidenced by his writings. Whether you like it or not, frustrating motorists will not get them to drive any less, it will just get them more frustrated.

The automobile is here to stay, and the city of Westmount should do all it can to facilitate the ability of drivers to commute in and around our city, not make it more difficult.

They can do this by synchronizing traffic lights, and making the green lights longer on the main east-west thoroughfares of St. Catherine and Sherbrooke. Another thing to do would be to make all those automatic pedestrian crossing lights function manually. As it is, these pedestrian lights engage with every cycle of the changing traffic light, leading to unnecessary delays for motorists.

Dog Runs Not Green

The prospect of a temporary dog run in one of the remaining peaceful areas of Westmount Park is extremely distressing. I add my voice to those who protest this proposal.

To begin, this use of park space is unwarranted. The possibility was not included among the issues raised during the arena consultation process. In addition, neither the mayor’s latest progress report on the arena, February 2012, nor the documentation and visual plans available on the city’s web site make reference to such a plan. The space in question is valued by many – old and young alike. Children from nearby nurseries play there daily, as do summer daycampers.

Westmount prides itself in being a sustainable community. The mayor’s report maintains the project will meet Westmounters’ needs “in an ecologically-respectful way” (p. 3). In fact the web document “Westmount Recreation Centre is Underway” claims the project will add green space to Westmount Park.

Dog runs are not green spaces. Grass is uprooted; trees and shrubs are scarred or destroyed, all within the confines of an unsightly iron-link fence. Such destruction in service of a short-lived objective is unjustifiable.

Many Westmounters will be inconvenienced by the arena reconstruction. Those who live in the immediate area look forward to escaping to the tranquility of the park at the end of each construction day. During this period, could owners not walk dogs in need of a run either five minutes east to the Westmount Athletic Grounds or 10 minutes north to Murray Park?

It should be noted many dog owners in the vicinity are against this proposal.

Bike path, Bixi requests pick up speed with new season

By Laureen Sweeney

The cycling season picked up speed at the city council meeting April 2 when residents asked for increased safety measures on the de Maisonneuve and Glen bike routes, as well as relocation of the Bixi docking station from Victoria Hall to the bike path.

Frederick Girvan, a resident of Victoria Ave., said the Bixi racks at the north end of Westmount Park encouraged Bixi users to ride through the park to access the bike path. As a matter of safety, “Could they be moved to the bike path?” he asked.

“We’ll look at it,” replied Mayor Peter Trent. He pointed out that unlike docking stations in England, for example, those in the Montreal system are solar powered and “completely movable.”

Patricia Dumais of the Westmount Walking and Cycling Association (WWCA) asked the city to install straight-ahead green arrow traffic lights for users of the de Maisonneuve path at Wood and Greene. This would enable them to get a five-second head start through the intersections before left-turning cars.

“Westmount has stated that safety issues will not be delayed by the master traffic plan, so we ask that these lights be installed at this time,” she added.

Dumais also noted that Westmount’s decision last year to install Bixi stations had made it possible for NDG to add four new ones this year for a total of six. This will mean “more NDG residents will choose to cycle through Westmount on their way downtown, rather than drive.” This was “consistent” with objectives of the city’s master traffic plan.

She also asked the city to ensure that bike path lanes were painted across all intersections since these appeared “to have been forgotten” last year at some locations.

Council was asked by Dan Lambert of the WWCA to extend the bollards on the northbound Glen bike lane right up to the intersection at St. Catherine. Currently, the protected bike path merges with the traffic lane at the crest of the hill. This forces car drivers to squeeze cyclists to the sidewalk, he explained, “which is not conducive to safety.”

He said the WWCA had carried out rush-hour surveys showing this design offered no significant traffic benefit to ease the flow as had been the reason for merging the lanes. In fact, it made it difficult for cyclists to build up sufficient speed on the hill to get through the wide intersection.

Selection of LED light head inches closer

By Laureen Sweeney

After more than two years, the city and dark-sky advocate Tony Moffat seem to be inching ever closer to finding a suitable LED light head they can agree on for the city’s Washingtonian light standards.

Building on the energy-saving messages of Earth Hour activities at Victoria Hall March 31, Moffat attended the city council meeting April 2 and turned his request up a notch in urging the city to find an LED light fixture that also deflected the light downward.

Could he have “assurance” the city won’t purchase any more traditional light heads, he asked.

Colour-wise, “that’s a little difficult,” replied director general Duncan Campbell. New LED lights would have to be the same colour as existing lighting because the city has been striving for uniformity.

Moffat reported that an on-street prototype he had viewed a month ago with Councillor Patrick Martin, commissioner of Utilities, cast a light that was “far too blue and too bright.”

“You want to turn all Westmount into a red light district?” asked Mayor Peter Trent. Just “redder,” Moffat replied. There are now a variety of LED colours on the market, however, it was reported.

Martin agreed with Moffat’s assessment, however, and Moffat was invited to go to Hydro Westmount offices and find out how street lighting norms required by Transport Quebec compared with dimmer LED lighting.

A discussion of street lighting brightness was continued by questioner Paul Marriott who, like Moffat, had been one of the organizers of the Earth Hour activities for the Healthy City Project. Trent pointed out that brightness was relative to other lighting in the same area.

Warned about car seat

The driver of a car involved in a minor rear-end collision on Sherbrooke at McTavish was advised to obtain a new child seat.

In the aftermath of Earth Hour activities March 31, Tony Moffat, like Councillor Theodora Samiotis, sported an event shirt emblazoned with the message “Proud to be dim” at the council meeting April 2.

Playground toy sprung

The spring on a playground riding toy was found sticking out of the ground at its base in Westmount Park March 20, Public Security officials said. Officers blocked off the area until the problem could be corrected. They were alerted to the defective item at 12:04 pm.

Dog run moving to wrong site, opponents contend

The city is barking up the wrong tree in deciding to temporarily move the Lansdowne dog run to a central part of Westmount Park, city council was told at its meeting April 2.

“It’s a recipe for disaster,” said Wanda Potrykus of York St. and “a huge mistake,” to move it back to the park even for one or two years during construction of the new recreation centre.

She said the venue just north of the pedestrian path posed a potential danger from runaway dogs being so close to a primary route used by parents with strollers, toddlers and the elderly, as well as being near the bike path and soccer fields.

“The hardest thing is to please everybody,” said Councillor Cynthia Lulham, commissioner of Urban Planning and Parks.

The ensuing discussion sounded like a replay of debates 25 years ago when the council decided the dog run – unfenced and on the edge of the park. It was comparable in size to the current Lansdowne run and is already partially hedged.

The statements from Potrykus were supported by Bridget Blackader of Clarke Ave., who negotiated many dog run issues with the city during her years as president of the now defunct Westmount Dog Owners Association.

Build higher fence

She told council the interim site would require a six-foot high fence along with brighter downward-pointing lighting akin to that at tennis courts and skating rinks so dog owners could see what had to be scooped up. Light from the Washingtonian standard in place now at the location was too dim and diffused.

“We were looking at five feet,” Lulham said of the fence. Six feet “is really the minimum,” Blackader persisted. “I can’t over emphasize the height.”

“I don’t think the centre of the park is an ideal spot,” said Frank Moller of Stanton St. He said his views reflected those of many others. He and his wife enjoy its tranquility. He suggested moving the dog run to the vacant lot on St. Catherine west of Metcalfe where the now burnt-out Westmount BBQ once stood.

Lulham reminded him that once the construction site gets under way, people will have to go further into the park to find tranquility.

“You must understand this is a temporary location,” Trent replied.

Committed to service

Lulham said the city was committed to retaining a service it offers dog owners. Providing a dog run would, hopefully, prevent more people from exercising their dogs on the playing fields and the play area in front of Westmount Park School, which she often sees despite it being against city by-laws.

Other areas of the park had been examined and the selected one was found to be the best, she said. There was no ques-
Contract signing clears way for start of construction

By Laureen Sweeney

“At 6 o’clock today, I signed a contract for $33.5 million,” Mayor Peter Trent announced at the start of the city council meeting April 2.

It was the final piece in what appears to have been a type of jigsaw puzzle scenario to iron out conditions and cost details of the design-build contract with Pomerleau Inc. to build the new Westmount recreation centre.

While the council had already authorized Trent to sign the contract two months ago, it took a long time of going “back-and-forth” and finalizing preparatory work to complete the deal, he explained.

“What happens next,” said Councillor Patrick Martin, steering committee chairman, is that the contractor’s head, Pierre Pomerleau, a...

An update on four condo projects in Westmount

By Marlene Eisner

With the brunt of winter behind us and moving season not so far away, the Independent went to find out the status of development of four condominium projects in Westmount.

11 Hillside

The building is completely built, all major construction is done, and some owners have moved in, said Anne Bothe, a sales rep. for the project.

“They started moving in as of the end of last month,” she said.

“We probably have three or four [residents], and three more who have signed. April, May and June are when all our signings are.”

Sales began about 18 months ago, and the project is 70 percent sold. There are now model units to show, rather than buyers being able to only look at plans. The interiors of the unsold units remain unfinished so that potential owners may customize them. The condo association has not yet been established and won’t be until at least 50 percent of the owners move in, said Bothe.

Although there is not much land in front of the structure, landscaping with trees, bushes and flowers will begin this month.

215 Redfern

Construction on the Redfern condominiums began the week of April 2 with the erection of posts for a wooden fence around the site. A hoarding notice has been posted on the boards with a message for residents who wish to communicate with the developers.

“... we recognize that we need to make it easy for residents and owners to make their voices heard. Please feel free to communicate with us at 514.937.4001.”

Amaral Gelinas, sales office manager, said the initial work to be done on the 60-unit luxury project is on the exterior.

“There will be about 70 percent demolition, since we have to build the new exterior of the building, and then the interior,” she said.

The developers have been working with the city of Westmount to come up with an equitable solution for residents concerned about the increased traffic, dust and noise that will result once construction begins. As of last week, a plan was established to have trucks enter the property through its southeast side via St. Catherine St. and exit using an alley at the north of the building and come around the east side and back onto St. Catherine.

“This was a way to disturb the public in the least possible way,” said Gelinas.

In the process, the developers had to remove a number of trees from the front lawn and from the east side as well to accommodate the trucks, and a planned circular concrete driveway.

“We took out two or three [trees] for the access and the construction, but we will be planting mature cedar trees all along the back, and we will be landscaping the property quite a bit once it’s done.”

Selby Condos

The Selby Condos, formerly called Les Jardins Westmount, has not changed developers, but has a new name and new architectural plans for the exterior façades.

Developer Rolland Hakim said he was expecting his construction permits as April 2, and once received, work would begin.

“We are going to demolish the old façade and put in the new ones, which are beautiful designs,” said Hakim.

“The exterior façades are a contemporary design, with four vil-

De Maisonneuve cut up by Bell

Bell Canada has been excavating the street around the intersection of Prince Albert Ave. and de Maisonneuve Blvd, in order to unblock underground conduits, said Marianne Zalzal, director of Westmount Public Works. While Bell is refilling the holes temporarily, a permanent repair will be done by Westmount in a few months, and the expense will be billed to the phone company. She said the conduits were badly in need of maintenance as some of them may date back as early as the early 1900s.

St. Paddy’s ball-goers attend cocktail party in the sky

The St. Patrick’s Society charity ball of Montreal took place on March 9 at the Marriott Château Champlain. Sold out weeks in advance, the $195-black-tie event started with the Patrons’ Reception on the hotel’s 36th floor, guaranteeing all a bird’s eye view of Montreal springing into, well, spring.

Ball chair was Marilyn Meikle, (in an emerald satin gown), there with husband Kevin Rochford. Guest of honour, in an Irish-green bow tie, was James Flaherty, federal minister of Finance, whose ancestors hail from County Galway in Ireland. He was with his wife Christine Elliott.

Honorary chair was Pamela McGovern, general counsel of Hydro Quebec.

Noted at the cocktail in the sky were Westmounters Sara Pedersen and husband Patrick Shea, president of the St. Patrick’s Society; Independent’s publisher David Price and his wife Catherine McKenzie; Justice Pierrette McConomy and husband lawyer Richard McConomy; Julie and Anthony Wait, president of the Irish Protestant Benevolent Society; Joanne Devlin and Brian Llewellyn-ap-Dafydd, president of the St. David’s Society, as well as Bruce Bolton, president of the St. Andrew’s Society, and Michael Kenneally, honorary consul general of Ireland for Montreal.

Queen of the night was Keira Kilmartin, with her charming Cinderella princesses Sheila Shakibaian, Hannah Quinn, Abbey Lacroix and Charlotte McLeod.

Guests were entertained by the talented Bernadette Short Celtic Grace Dancers.

Platinum sponsors were Novartis, L’Équipeur and Miller Thomson.

The event raised a record-breaking $50,000 for the society’s many charitable causes.

Then on March 16, the Hilton Bonaventure hosted the 179th St. Patrick’s luncheon, attracting movers and shakers from all communities.  Arena to be decommissioned

Westmount resident, will start to mobilize the team, present the city with a management plan and fence the work site.

It is not yet known exactly where the hoarding will have to be placed. This, as has been stated previously, will impact a number of decisions such as plans for the bike path and the status of de Maisonneuve in front of Westmount Park Church.

The existing arena building is to be decommissioned after the last hockey game April 15, Martin explained. Office materials and personnel will be relocated to Public Works and Victoria Hall. “We expect demolition some time after May 1.”

Meanwhile, he added, “there may be work in other places. We’ll be getting back to you very shortly with a plan of action from the contractor.”

Martin noted that Trent had “held the line” on the largest project the city will have ever undertaken and offered council’s “heartfelt congratulations,” which generated applause from the council and most of the audience alike.

Councillor Cynthia Lulham reported that a total of 120 people in District 7 had attended her five neighbourhood meetings on city plans to mitigate disruption during the construction period (see April 3, p. 1).

Two additional meetings are in the planning stages for District 5.

Wealth management advice based on security and stability

In an uncertain economy that has created challenges for many investment advisors and their clients, Denny Matte, Senior Vice President and Investment Advisor with Macquarie Private Wealth in Montreal, has delivered a steady investment approach that draws a dedicated following among the city’s top entrepreneurs, business leaders and medical professionals. During the course of 25 years serving Montreal’s high-net worth individuals and families, he has become one of Canada’s leading experts in crafting customized investment portfolios that are built to last.

“The fundamental rule is that each portfolio must be constructed for the specific client,” Mr. Matte explains. “You don’t let the market environment decide what should be in the portfolio. You take control and carefully select investments that work for each individual situation.”

What works for affluent investors in the current environment tends to be yield-producing investments, whether dividend-paying stocks or investment-grade corporate bonds. Balanced portfolios of this nature are able to deliver predictable returns and income regardless of how markets are behaving. Moreover, this strategy is more sophisticated than it would appear on the surface – Mr. Matte has a unique ability to source quality securities that go beyond what a standard broker can do. In addition, he manages these portfolios himself.

“Years ago, I discovered that third-party managers and mutual funds weren’t matching the investment results that I was able to generate using my own skills and professional judgment,” he says. “Clients began requesting that I dispense with that layer of fees and complexity – and I’ve been directing all portfolios ever since.”

Matte credits the institutional strength of his firm, Macquarie Private Wealth, for providing an extensive range of investments to choose from. The global resources of Macquarie enable him to select stocks and bonds that most other firms simply don’t have access to. As a result, Matte and his clients go beyond the standard off-the-shelf products to invest in securities that can provide better yields at a lower cost.

“My clients place a great deal of trust in my counsel, which is why I conduct regular portfolio updates with each of them on a monthly basis,” Matte says. “This presents an opportunity to review the investment strategy and make any necessary adjustments. Ultimately, my clients value peace of mind, and that’s what my professional counsel provides.”

Abandoned cats in the ’hood

Sam, the little lion

We need a family for Sam, this striking white and cream Persian “mini lion” with exquisite amber eyes. Such a handsome fellow, with his wide-eyed look that follows everything around him.

He is 3-years old, very healthy and has been neutered. If you would like more information on this affectionate charmer, please contact Barbara at bosterholzca@yahoo.com.

Little Miss Sweetheart

This sweet female is friendly, affectionate and a people cat who loves to be petted. Our neighbours on Victoria Ave. will recognize this adorable young grey and white domestic shorthair girlie from their backyards, where, unfortunately she has been living for several weeks.

We don’t know if she is lost or if she has been abandoned there. She is being fed on back porches and is coming to back doors to try to get into homes, as if she is used to going home but has nowhere to go.

Please look at her closely. Do you recognize her from your area or from “lost cat” posters?

If there is no information on her soon, she will be considered abandoned.

Even if you could foster her in the meantime, we could get her in from the outside.

Please don’t hesitate to contact Ingrid about her at 541.939.1846 or email her at ihnanning@videotron.ca.

Raccoon checks out the hospitality

A raccoon that may have been looking for comfortable lodging – and possibly a good meal – was reportedly shooed out of a home on The Boulevard just after 10 pm, March 23. Public Security officials said they were called for assistance when the animal was discovered inside. Officers managed to get it out a back patio door. It was not known how the intruder had entered the house located between Mount Pleasant and Braeside Place.

Top-ranked Peewee A Preds manage to survive second-round scare

BY MICHAEL MOORE

His voice tinged with both relief and frustration after watching his top-seeded Peewee A Predators eke out a second-round playoff win, head coach Warren Garfield let out a sardonic laugh that highlighted his conflicted mood.

work on passing and getting the puck out of the zone.”

Sparked by their unexpected deficit, the Predators began to control the pace of the game and turned to captain Max Shafter to even the score. Grabbing the puck in the neutral zone and flying into the Canucks end, Shafter deked a trio of defenders before rifling a low wristshot into the net.

“I was really angry that we were losing,” said Shafter. “I just wanted a goal to bring our confidence back up.”

Shafter gave the Predators their first lead in a similar fashion early in the second period, picking the puck up in his own zone and racing down the ice before firing home a wristshot.

After the Canucks tied the score halfway through the period, the Predators regained the lead a minute later when Lucas Clarke’s seemingly innocuous point shot knuckled off of the Canucks netminder and skidded in.

With neither team able to mount a consistent threat early in the third, the Canucks began buzzing around the Westmount goal in the game’s dying minutes, trying to tie the game, forcing the Predators again to turn to their captain to put the game out of reach.

Sent in on a breakaway by Felix Simard’s defence-splitting pass, Shafter completed his hat trick in style, deking past a sprawled Canucks netminder and sliding the puck in.

Did you know that hockey team manager Gliksman is also an author?

Stephanie Gliksman, known in the Westmount hockey community as team manager for the Peewee A Predators is also an author. Her first book is When Kids Rule the School. A special education technician with the English Montreal School Board, Gliksman writes under the pen name Stephanie Gee. The first in her Misfit Academy series, this is an entertaining story about grade 3 student, Bobby Loo, “who can’t seem to do anything right at school” and daydreams about what he would do if he was in charge.

When Kids Rule is available on Amazon in both e-book and paperback formats and at Kidlink in NDG.

A second book Squished Bananas and Other Homework Battles is due to be released by summer.
It was heralded as the “ship of dreams,” but for three members of the Allison family of Westmount, it would turn out to be a ship of death.

By April of 1912, Hudson Joshua Creighton Allison had risen to become one of Westmount’s richest residents as a broker. Married to Bess Daniels, originally of Milwaukee, the couple had two children: 2-year-old Loraine and 11-month-old Hudson Trevor.

The young family lived at 464 Roslyn Ave. (which still stands), though as the family fortunes skyrocketed, they were having a more spacious home built on Belmont Ave.

Apart from his stock holdings, Allison had been investing in the finest breeds of cattle and horses at the new Allison Stock Farm near Chesterville, Ontario, an hour west of Montreal.

Life for the Allisons of Westmount couldn’t get much better. In March 1912, the family travelled to Britain on a business/vacation trip. Taking an excursion to the Scottish highlands, they purchased horses and stock for their farm. At the same time, they bought new furnishings for their Belmont Ave. house and recruited a chauffeur, cook and two housemaids.

On April 10, 1912, they boarded the White Star Line luxury passenger liner, RMS Titanic in Southampton for their return home.

During the evening of April 14, the family sat down for what would be their last dinner with their good friends Toronto millionaire Major Arthur Peuchen and Montrealer Harry Markland Molson.

At 11:40 pm, the “unsinkable” Titanic struck an iceberg in the North Atlantic, 375 miles south of Newfoundland. Two and a half hours later in the wee hours of April 15, she had vanished, slipping 3,784 metres below the bone-chilling waters of the northern sea. Of the 2,224 passengers and crew registered on the vessel, 1,514 would die.

Of the four Allison family members, only young Trevor survived. His father, mother and sister all perished.

There are a few versions of what actually happened to the Allisons in the confusion following the collision with the iceberg. One is that newly-acquired nursemaid Alice Cleaver had grabbed Trevor and made it into one lifeboat, while Bess and Loraine were being put into another. Bess was not aware that Trevor and Alice were safe, and having second thoughts, jumped out of the lifeboat with her daughter, back onto the deck of the foundering ship to try to find her son and husband.

Another is that Bess was last seen tumbling into the frigid sea from a lifeboat.

Bess and Loraine’s bodies were lost at sea and never recovered. Hudson’s body was found floating in the Atlantic by the rescue ship Mackay-Bennett. His remains were laid to rest in the family plot in Chesterville.

A few hours after the sinking, Trevor Allison and the nursemaid Alice were picked up alive by the RMS Carpathia and brought to New York City.

The orphaned child was raised by his uncle and aunt, George and Lillian Allison. But the untimely shroud of premature death was not to part from the Allison family name. Trevor would meet his unfortunate end at the young age of 18 from food poisoning while on vacation in Maine in 1929.

“The sinking of the Titanic resonates with us on so many levels,” explains Montreal author Alan Hustak, who penned the book Titanic: The Canadian Story Centennial Edition. “How would we behave in a disaster? Many will say it was God’s retri-

Cadieux retires after selling St. Catherine St. pharmacy

By Joanne Penhale

Classical music plays amidst neatly organized medications as Westmount pharmacist Murielle Cadieux contemplates her career of 35 years.

In 1977, she was a pharmacy student at the University of Montreal when she was hired at the Henry Goldenberg Pharmacy on St. Catherine St. at Metcalfe.

“When I started, people used to take a lot of tranquilizers, like Valium,” Cadieux reflected. “Now people take anti-depressants.”

Cadieux purchased the pharmacy from Goldenberg in 1995, and about five years ago it was renamed Proxim Murielle Cadieux.

“People are much more aware of medication than they were before,” Cadieux said, adding people do internet research about drug interactions and side effects. She also said there are now drugs for problems which once didn’t have pharmaceutical treatments, like osteoporosis, high-cholesterol, erectile dysfunction and bladder control.

There have also been many mergers in the pharmaceutical industry, she explained. “There aren’t that many [drug companies] left now; they all buy each other.”

And, she said, there are now problems with drug shortages, which didn’t exist before, and drug costs have gone up over the years, with new medications often being very expensive.

Cadieux said she’s proud of the relationships she’s built with her clients. “I know 99 percent of the customers by name.” She said she’ll miss them, but is looking forward to having more time for tennis and traveling. She is 58 years old this month.

Thai Khanh Nguyen, a 27-year-old pharmacist, purchased the business in January, and Cadieux has stayed on until the first week of April to ease the transition.

Home to call her own

A tiny, 3-month-old puppy found racing through traffic on a busy Beirut highway almost six years ago, Baguerra was aptly named after both the European sports car and The Jungle Book black panther character Bagheera. Saved from this terrifying experience by a brave rescue worker, Baguerra was brought to a quiet, rural shelter, where she hoped to find a new family.

Yet cultural norms and popular myth make black dogs even more of an anathema in Lebanon than here in North America, so poor Baguerra has spent her entire life living at the shelter.

Luckily, she is finally being given another chance to find a loving home, as a number of rescues have worked together to bring her to Canada and find her the perfect forever family.

A favourite at the Lebanese canine shelter because of her affectionate nature, Baguerra is no stranger to love and affection, but she has never had a family or even a bed to call her own. She is understandably a little shy with strangers, but she is not aggressive, and once properly introduced this eager-to-please girl will do just about anything to earn your love.

Baguerra is wonderful with cats and dogs and can be placed with kids over the age of 8, as long as they are respectful of her space and approach her gently while she is settling into her new home.

Baguerra is still making the adjustment from country life to city life, and is fairly nervous around bikes and cars. As with many rescue dogs, she has never had the chance to learn recall and may run away at first if given the opportunity. As such, Baguerra will need to be kept on leash or brought to the dog park until she learns recall.

While it was The Jungle Book’s Mowgli who said, “Wherever I wander, wherever I roam, I couldn’t be fonder of my big home,” it is our own Lebanese-imported Baguerra who would do just about anything to have a home of her own for the first time in her life.

If you are interested in fostering or adopting Baguerra, contact Sophie’s Dog Adoption at 514.523.5052.

We have heard from several readers that they want to know about the dogs who have been adopted. We will work to bring more feel-good stories. In the meantime, please visit www.underdogclub.org and click on “Adopted” for all those underdogs who found homes. We want you to keep reading us!

makes the entire building very architecturally interesting with the cubes in cantilever; it gives it a movement, more volume.”

Hakim said he made the decision to change the exterior plans so that his project would stand out from other condo developments.

“There are so many condos in Westmount and Montreal for sale, we decided to have a special architecture, to distinguish ourselves in all levels. We are building a building for the years to come where energy is a very key factor. We’re doing thermal energy and central heat exchange, as well as very large, triple glazed windows for passive solar energy.”

Sales are going well, and Hakim said delivery is expected for spring 2013. The exterior remains the same as it did when last reported in June 2011.

Cement falls from building

Firefighters were called to the building at the southwest corner of Claremont and Sherbrooke March 26 when pieces of cement were found falling from a second ballustrade of decorative trim, Public Security officials said. Officers cordoned off the area with danger tape and called the Public Works and Urban Planning departments. Repair crews were reported on the scene at 1 pm. The apartment building houses a TD Canada Trust branch on the corner.

PSO greeted by growling dog

A woman who found a dog wandering loose March 20 at Elm and Sherbrooke followed it back to its home on Elm Ave. and alerted Public Security. The boxer growled at the responding officer from its front porch at 8 pm preventing her from ringing the doorbell. The owner was reached instead by phone to answer the door. He claimed to have a licence for the one-year-old dog but couldn’t produce it and was given the customary 14 days to acquire one.

Dogs head to the right place

Two dogs seemed to know just where to go to get their own licences. The unlicensed pair was found in the parking at city hall March 22, according to Public Security officials. Just as they were taken up to the station on Stanton St., a call was received from their anxious owner, who was told to obtain the required permits. The dogs live on Anwoth Rd.

Shoe store, shoe drive

On March 31, Westmounters strolling past the Foot Solutions store on Victoria Ave. were asked to be among the first people in the Montreal region to donate to Soles4Souls, a non-profit group that gathers new or gently used footwear for the world’s developing countries. This year’s event was organized by the Montreal chapter of the Professional Organizers’ Association of Canada. Foot Solutions owner Simon Bitton got into the spirit by donating pairs of footwear he accumulated. Seen in the photo, from left, are volunteers Dorothy Spevack and Bonnie Boutet, Soles4Soul’s executive director for eastern Canada Don Robichaud, Pat Aichenleek, Bitton, Westmounter Cary Lawrence and Renée Blanchette. Other donation drop-off points in Westmount are the Running Room on Sherbrooke St. and Centre Greene.

Dog run

Elimination of eliminating the run entirely or asking its users to make their way to runs at Murray Park or the Westmount Athletic Grounds (WAG), she said.

“One reason I support the need for a dog run in that area,” she later told the Independent, “is that it’s a designated place where people who live in lower Westmount can bring their big dogs for exercise. Big dogs need it. People with smaller dogs, like me, don’t.”

But she added, “I didn’t want to start dog wars again. I was hoping we could move forward.”
